CPR Pro for the Professional Rescuer has been approved by the Continuing Education Coordinating Board for Emergency Medical Services (CECBEMS)* and is accepted by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians (NREMT). The program has been also been approved by many state health agencies and may be used to meet the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organization's (JCAHO) Resuscitation Standard.

The American Safety & Health Institute (ASHI) is an association of approximately 35,000 professional safety and health educators and more than 5,500 training centers around the world. ASHI courses are taught in more than 20 countries, and ASHI is recognized as one of the top five providers of emergency care certification in the United States.

ASHI training center membership covers a wide range of organizations, including hospitals, universities, public school districts, community colleges, vocational schools, charitable foundations, local and federal governments, public and private corporations, training companies, and local emergency medical service, fire, rescue, and law enforcement agencies. ASHI's mission is the continuous improvement of safety and health education through the promotion of high membership standards, principles of sound research for curriculum development, and professional development of safety and health instructors worldwide.
